It arrived on July 16th, 2016 during the Summercelebration. Unlike its common counterpart, the Hoola, the Rare Hoola is red and has two hula hoops rotating around its body; one is green and one is turquoise. The Rare Hoola has a curly hairstyle that looks somewhat of a 1950's woman. The Rare Hoola also has a "skirt" of fur arranged in a way that appears similar to that of an umbrella. Its in-game description also shows that the Rare Hoola has the same diet as the PomPom, whom eats foods that are only red. However, the Rare Hoola consumes this food more excessively, thus it appears red rather than pink like the PomPom. The Rare Hoola shares the same animation as the regular Hoola, though it is hula hooping a second hula hoop. If one looks closely at the Rare Hoola's hands when it gets to the 'uh-oh' part of its song on Air Island, they can see that the Rare Hoola's 'fingernails' are painted red. The Rare Hoola shares the same audio as its common counterpart, the Hoola, It sings the following on each island: Air Island/Mirror Air Island- "Hey Nana Hey Nana Hey Nana Hey Low; Hey Nana, Hey Nana post for the 2016 release of the normal Hoola. Although their normal counterparts have different breeding times, the Rare Hoola shares the Rare Hoola is the only Rare Seasonal that formerly was not to be able to exist on its respective Mirror Islands. One of Rare Hoola's default names, Sissilí Yon, is a reference to Cicillian oranges, which, on the inside, are the same colour as Rare Hoola's Appearance on FacebookWhen hatched, if the option to share on Facebook is selected, the picture of Rare Hoola in the post will look slightly different, having a gap in its teeth and a different colored mouth. When it was first teased, many players thought it was a new Wublin. While Hoola was the first Rare Seasonal released.
